

Padma Choudry is Senior Counsel at VMware, a global provider of multi-cloud services that enable digital innovation. Prior to VMware, she worked at Children's Healthcare of Atlanta, heading legal support for Marcus Autism Center, including research, development, and commercialization efforts for their early autism detection device. Padma started her legal career as a patent practitioner, combining her love of reading with her passion for learning about new areas, and she has continued to learn ever since. Padma currently serves on the Board of Library Trustees in her town and on the South Asian Bar Association of North America's Foundation Board. Growing up, Padma never met a book she didn't like, but Charlotte's Web was one of her favorites.
